Concept Explanation

We have 7 alcoholic cocktails and 2 non-alcoholic cocktails. Our menu is inspired by a selection of classic cocktails with a twist on flavours.

Signature Cocktails	Non-alcoholic
Lychee and Elderflower Martini Our fruity martini choice, perfect crowd pleaser if guests are looking for a light gin drink. Served in a Nick and Nora. Great aperitif.	Raspberry and Lychee Sling Fruity yet sharp, with lychee and raspberry and a soda fizz, served long on crushed ice.
Watermelon Mule Light, fruity and fiery take on a Moscow Mule, served long on the rocks with vodka and ginger beer.	Ginger Addiction A fiery ginger drink with sweet vanilla, apple and kiwi, served long on the rocks.
Strawberry and Rhubarb Fizz Inspired by a Bellini and fortified with vodka, fruity strawberry and rhubarb, served up in a coupe. Great aperitif.
G&amp;G A long and light gin cocktail with apricot flavours and ginger ale, served long on the rocks.
Our Rum Punch A strong and tropical rum based gin lengthened with pineapple, served long on the rocks.
The Passionate A bittersweet taste on a gin passion fruit martini, served up in a coupe. Great aperitif.
Cacao Old Fashioned Strong chocolate and rum version of an old fashioned, served short on the rocks.

Method	Description
Build	Cocktail-making technique which involves adding ingredients into a serving glass or a Boston tin in a specific order to mix ingredients without dilution or chilling.
Throw	Cocktail-making technique which chills and mixes a drink at the same time. It is designed to aerate a drink without diluting it too much.
Dry shake	Dry shake means shaking ingredients in a shaker with no ice to avoid dilution and create a different mixture between the ingredients. Very often this technique is used in drinks containing egg white, where whipping the ingredient before shaking creates a foam which will give another texture to the drink.
Wet shake	Wet shake means shaking ingredients in a shaker with ice. It is used to mix the drink with a certain level of dilution and is a key method for shaking the drinks with citrus, fruit, creams and liqueurs.
Hard shake	Hard shake is like wet shake, but is intended to drive the ice inside around the shaker rather than just back and forth. This technique creates ice shards that will smoothen up the drink.
Stir	Stirring is a much gentler mixing technique than shaking. Its goal is to combine the ingredients with just a right level of dilution to make it more palatable.
Fine strain	Fine strain (Double strain) is often used when a drink is mixed with small, solid ingredients that are not desired in the final drink. Drink would go through 2 strainers before reaching the glass: Hawthorne and Fine mesh.
Strain	Straining technique is used to remove various items before serving. It is often used to avoid ice reaching the final drink after shaking or to remove fruits, leaves and any other bits we do not want in the drink.
Muddle	Muddling is a technique used when we require to release the flavours of fresh products. Ingredients such as fruits and herbs are pressed against the side of the glass with a muddler to release oils and juices.
Churn	To churn a drink is when the ingredients are stirred with crushed ice. Churning will ensure that the drink chills very quickly.
